

Pat Stump

Evolving Concepts: Old and New Exhibition Statement

A development of new and exciting ideas comes to life when an artist works in the studio. As an artist I believe that art is an ongoing and never ending process, like the works created for this show. The works are developed from a background of many different images taken for the sole purpose of creating art. Each individual piece of work has multiple images within it, not all are clear to the eye at first glance so look harder, look at it in different directions, and be as creative as the work itself. And Enjoy!